

Energy Equity: If equity is a policy goal in reduction of our carbon footprint, then it must be matched with incentives and considerations targeted to low and moderate income Vermonters. How do current programs impact environmental justice households & LMI households, and how can a revised RES assure that benefits and burdens are distributed equitably

Residential building types: Historically, the benefits of renewables have been concentrated in higher income single family homeowners; renters, and in particular, low-income renter households have not had access to the benefits of renewables. How will changes to RES address this inequity>
